FRANK E. LANGLEY, Publisher

It takes sand to walk outdoors these slippery days.

A good resolution right now is to be careful of fires in connection with Christmas tree celebrations.

No, there have been no plots in the United States; it has merely been the chatter of Sunday school children out on a picnic.

Maranville, a Boston Brave ball player, is working as a plumber this winter. Doubtless, he's trying to stop the leaks in his summer salary.

The chaplain of the United States Senate prayed just 10 lines long by Congressional Record measurement on Dec. 16, and yet he said just as much as some ministers who would fill a book with a single prayer.

First it was the snow, then it was the rain, which prevented detection of a murderer at Great Barrington, Mass. The next reason may be because the murderer didn't come around and surrender himself.

"Is the administration deliberately provoking a break with Austria-Hungary?" asks that journal which claims to pose for "fair play for Germany and Austria-Hungary" in the United States; and the contemporary then goes on with a lot of rant and rot against the United States because it feels sure of the "fair play" of the American people, else it never would indulge in such unreasonable diatribe.

The Berkshire, Mass., Animal Rescue league must be giving out medals on the wholesale basis, for we note the league intends to give a medal to James Hogan of Coltsville, Mass., because he wallowed through "30 inches" of snow and rescued a cow which had run several hundred feet into the pasture and become marooned there. Any farmer's helper in Vermont would have thought such an act all in the day's work.

According to the Rutland News, a "few persons screamed and others shuddered" when they watched a Rutland teamster attempt to drive his horse ahead after a hind foot of the animal had become caught in a car track, the urging of the driver causing the horse to swing around so that the foot was nearly at the reverse of its normal position and the horse became thrown. While they were screaming and shuddering they might have notified the driver of the animal's predicament.

Because of various reasons the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Galt was carried out with little ostentation, and Washington people went about their own affairs in a very self-restrained manner, thereby respecting the wishes of the bride couple that as little public attention as possible be paid to the wedding. Indeed, the institution of the public was remarkable in view of the fact that only two men previously in the entire history of the nation had been married while serving as president of the United States. It might have been expected, in the light of that fact, that the people would have found it difficult to keep their curiosity in check. But such, it seems, was not the case, for the bride couple were not subjected to as much attention by a staring crowd as is paid to a marrying couple under less noteworthy conditions; and there were no cheering, jostling mobs to block the way of the distinguished couple as they left the house of the bride for their wedding trip. In this respect no fault can be found with the behavior of the people of Washington. They are a well-behaved lot when they care to be such.

CANCER IN VERMONT.

That the disease of cancer is getting to be, if it is not already, the great enemy of human life in Vermont is shown by numerous statistics, important among which is the statement that cancer caused more deaths in the town of Brattleboro during the present year than tuberculosis. Heretofore tuberculosis has been considered the most grave menace in Vermont; but the advance made in the treatment of that disease, together with the preventive measures, has reduced the mortality from it to such an extent that other diseases are coming to the front. A comparison of the two diseases in Brattleboro, as shown by the mortality, reveals ten deaths from cancer, to six from tuberculosis. Personal knowledge of cases in other towns and cities of the state emphasizes the conviction that the great defensive work in the years to come must be against cancer because of its rapid spread and because of its malignancy. We have heard the statement made that there are 14 well-defined cases of cancer in a single Vermont community of medium size. It is probable too, that there are not as many cases of tuberculosis in the same community, at least not of well-defined cases of tuberculosis. Cancer has been prevalent in Vermont for many years, but never before has it come to such sharp attention as at present.

A MILITARY CAMP IN VERMONT.

Norwich university is peculiarly adapted for the work of holding a summer training school along military lines, and the announcement that such a school will be held during the summer of 1916 is very opportune in view of the increasing sentiment throughout the United States that military training has been a neglected subject in the education of the young men of the nation. The announcement gives promise that the courses to be offered will prove of great benefit to the men who elect to participate, the benefits being physical, mental and, to a certain extent, moral. In view of that promise, the expectation of an enrollment of 300 men ought to be realized next summer. Under direction of the president of the university, Ira L. Reeves, who is himself thoroughly schooled in military life through long service with the United States army, aided by Ralph M. Parker, commandant at the university and a member of the U. S. cavalry arm of the service, and capable instructors, the school should attract a large number from all sections of the country. Incidentally, too, the summer school in military science should result in a considerable upbuilding of the university in its regular college sessions because of the greater attention which will be directed to the institution.

JOIN OUR 1916 THRIFT
CLUB NOW

Our purpose in maintaining this department is to afford an easy and sure way for the accumulation of ready money for definite purposes through the process of a systematic laying aside of a small sum at regular periods. It is designed to promote the habit of "thrift" among both the young and those of more mature years by providing an opportunity for depositing in the bank the small sums that are frequently frittered away.

For whatever purpose you may be saving money, it pays to open a Thrift Club account—pays and helps. It provides a system under which you can watch the accumulation grow, while all the time your fund is protected from thoughtless, wasteless spending and held true to your object.
